

United States Senate

WASHINGTON, DC 20510

November 3, 2015

Mr. Eric A. McAfee
Chairman and Chief Executive Officer
Aemetis
20400 Stevens Creek Boulevard, Suite 700
Cupertino, CA 95014

Dear Mr. McAfee:

We are immensely grateful for your leadership on climate issues and for your participation in the White House corporate event on climate.

It is so important that corporate leaders take responsibility for sustainable operations and a sustainable supply chain. It is vital that corporate leaders support the Clean Power Plan and a strong COP21 agreement in Paris. But please do not give up on Congress.

All of the President's work is critical, but Congress can play a key role in achieving our climate goals.

We are overjoyed to read about corporate climate commitments, and support companies that demonstrate these commitments clearly and consistently. From our perspective your commitments have yet to resonate with many in Congress. Too often the voices of strong corporate leaders are contradicted by the trade associations of which they are a part. Corporate lobbying groups need to change their policy positions on climate if they are to reflect the opinions of members who are committed to climate action.

Please, don't "abandon all hope, ye who enter here." There is a critical mass of support in the country and even in Congress to tackle this climate crisis.

Sincerely,

Sheldon Whitehouse
United States Senator

Brian Schatz
United States Senator

Barbara Boxer
United States Senator

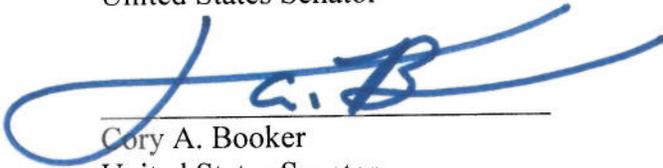

Jeanne Shaheen
United States Senator

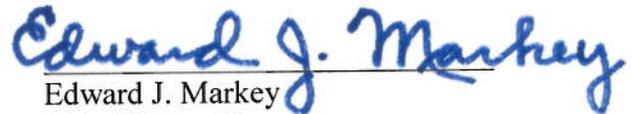

Tom Udall
United States Senator

Al Franken
United States Senator

Cory A. Booker
United States Senator

Edward J. Markey
United States Senator

Gary C. Peters
United States Senator

Richard Blumenthal
United States Senator